objects

mathematics is without object though relations statistics is within mathematics and with object baseline is a statistical consideration baseline may be defined differently across departments as a potential consideration of the same object statistics is a relational consideration and having mentioned a requirement of objects for value mention applied mathematics mathematics is a quantitative relational value though immaterial value an interpretation of relations given that which is other than applied mathematics is curious object as an assignment ascription of value such as the white clouds cumulonimbus the lapping shoreline partially frozen the smooth cut of the chainsaw cut tree smelled good and with rings every star is white and round except the yellow sun the earthworm on the hook the slimy fish thrown back the red wing blackbird rested on the cattail the green walnuts started falling in late september turn black and a skin removed to eat the glass clock kept standard time and with brass pendulum the airplane and with no engine sound drifted to the left toward dallas floated the sandy beach and the buried child one hundred firecrackers all at once and paper left behind magnets are neat my calendar magnet supports twenty five pounds of weight my cow stomach magnet which is introduced into a bovine's one of four stomachs which I purchased at the national dairy convention in two thousand would support half the unmoved mover as soul [question] were a question of unmoved mover as internal to a person's body whether there were a single unmoved mover or a soul considered unmoved mover within every person a philosophical concept may be religiously considered an unmoved mover may be more gelatinous and omnipresent and pantheistic as well as immaterially considered a soul is unchangeable within every person including after death including before birth whether a soul moves a person's body from within may be a question of purpose of the soul whether a soul moves that which is exterior to a person's body as an unmovable force may be a question of whether more than one person exists as well a soul within a body moving is moving with the body it is within nor can longer be considered unmovable as it is moving if only by its own force
